DETAILED ACTIONElection/Restrictions

Newly submitted claims 16-32 are directed to an invention/inventions that is independent or distinct from the invention originally claimed for the following reasons: the instant claims are drawn to a gaming machine/apparatus/method/system/storage medium that includes identification data. Instant claims 1-15 are drawn to an entertainment delivery apparatus/method/system, which does not include gaming and identification data. Also, the entertainment delivery features of the elected invention (claims 1-15) are not claimed in the non-elected invention (claims 16-32).

Since applicant has received an action on the merits for the originally presented invention, this invention has been constructively elected by original presentation for prosecution on the merits. Accordingly, claims 16-32 have been withdrawn from consideration as being directed to a non-elected invention. See 37 CFR 1.142(b) and MPEP § 821.03.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 3-4, 6-9, 13 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tanskanen (6,579,184) in view of Sasaki et al (5,667,440).

Art Unit: 3714

Regarding claims 1, 3-4, 6-9, 13 and 15, Tanskanen teaches an entertainment device/system/method that includes a means for receiving terminal data from each of a plurality of entertainment terminal devices through a low-speed communication line {telephone}; means for generating entertainment data including data necessary for each of the plurality of entertainment terminal devices to execute a predetermined entertainment process on the basis of the terminal data received from the plurality of entertainment terminal devices; and means for transmitting the entertainment data to a data delivery machine, the machine delivering the same entertainment data to each of the plurality of entertainment terminal devices through a broadband broadcast communication line {cable TV or satellite} (abstract; col. 2, lines 1-6, 22-25, and 57-67; col. 3, lines 22-36; col. 6, lines 1-6 and lines 39-42). While Tanskanen teaches a multiplayer game, whereby the players play together (col. 4, lines 44-55), Tanskanen is silent regarding the explicit teaching of transmitting entertainment data to the devices at the same time. However, one of ordinary skill in the art would recognize that the entertainment data must be present at all of the terminal devices at the same time in order for the players to play the game together. In an analogous entertainment data system, Sasaki teaches timing synchronization in multiple gaming environment (col. 8, lines 5-20). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to incorporate time synchronization, as taught by Sasaki, into Tanskanen to allow the terminal devices to receive entertainment data at the same time so that they could all have a fair chance to win the game. This would make the gaming more convenient for the players.

Art Unit: 3714

Claims 10-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tanskanen (6,579,184) in view of Sasaki et al (5,667,440), further in view of Tarr (5,935,004).

Regarding claims 10-11, Tanskanen and Sasaki teach all the limitations of the claims as discussed above. The references are silent regarding the explicit teachings of the feature of scrambling/descrambling. In an analogous entertainment data system, Tarr teaches this feature (see prior office action, paper #7, which is incorporated herein by reference). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include this feature, as taught by Tarr, in the entertainment systems of Tanskanen and Sasaki in order to ensure that unauthorized persons are not allow to receive and transmit data. This increases the security of the system.

Regarding claim 12, Tanskanen and Sasaki teach all the limitations of the claims as discussed above. The references are silent regarding the explicit teachings of the feature of the delivery machine demanding payment. In an analogous entertainment data system, Tarr teaches this feature (see prior office action, paper #7, which is incorporated herein by reference). It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to include this feature, as taught by Tarr, in the entertainment systems of Tanskanen and Sasaki in order to ensure that the users of the software purchase the entertainment before the entertainment is supplied. This would prevent the gaming establishment from losing money, and making accounting easier.

Examiner's Response to Applicant's Remarks

Art Unit: 3714

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-15 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. The examiner has cited Tanskanen and Sasaki, above, to better teach the instant claimed features.

Pertinent Prior Art

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Stoel et al, Rhoades, Fennell, Jr. Et al, Smith et al, Cai teach entertainment delivery systems.
